Report RL34581

*Members Who Have Served in the U.S. Congress for 30
Years or More*

Mildred Amer and Clay H. Wellborn, Government and Finance Division

July 7, 2008

Abstract. This report identifies the 234 Members of Congress who have served in Congress for at least 30 years, as of July 7, 2008. Those 234 Members are only 2% of the 11,828 individuals who have represented their states and congressional districts in Congress since 1789. Of the 234 Members with at least 30 years of congressional service, 137 have spent all of their congressional careers in the House; 27 have spent all of their careers in the Senate; and 70 have had combined service in the House and Senate. Among Members of the 110th Congress, 16 Senators and 17 Representatives have served 30 years or more.

Summary

This report identifies the 234 Members of Congress who have served in Congress for at least 30 years, as of July 7, 2008. Those 234 Members are only 2% of the 11,828 individuals who have represented their states and congressional districts in Congress since 1789.

Of the 234 Members with at least 30 years of congressional service, 137 have spent all of their congressional careers in the House; 27 have spent all of their careers in the Senate; and 70 have had combined service in the House and Senate. Among Members of the 110th Congress, 16 Senators and 17 Representatives have served 30 years or more.

This report supercedes CRS Report RL30370, by Mildred Amer, Specialist in American National Government. It will be updated as additional Members reach the 30-year mark, and at the beginning of each Congress.

Members Who Have Served in the U.S. Congress for 30 Years or More

Introduction

As of July 7, 2008, a total of 234 persons have served for 30 years or more in the United States Congress as Representative or Senator.<sup>1</sup> That number is only 2% of the 11,828 men and women who have represented their states and congressional districts since the First Congress convened on March 4, 1789. Of the 234 Members serving 30 years or more, 137 served only in the House of Representatives; 27 served only in the Senate; and 70 served in both chambers.

Over time, the number of Members serving 30 years or more has grown. Only two Members with over 30 years of service were in Congress in the 18th century: Nathaniel Macon began his service in 1791; Samuel Smith, in 1793. Seven served entirely during the 19th century. By 1967 (90th Congress), a total of 100 Members had served 30 years or more.<sup>2</sup> As of July 7, 2008, (110th Congress) that number had risen to 234. Among Members of the 110th Congress, 16 incumbent Senators and 17 incumbent Representatives have served 30 years or longer.

Table 1 lists Members who have served 30 years or longer in descending order of the length of their congressional service, as measured in days.<sup>3</sup> For each Member, the table presents the Member's party and state represented; dates of the Member's first and last day of service, by chamber; days of service in each chamber; and total days of congressional service. Total service is also presented in years and fractions of years.<sup>4</sup>

<sup>3</sup> Earlier editions of this report presented congressional service in terms of years, months, and days. But the method was based on assumptions about the number of days per month and was imprecise. This report avoids the imprecision associated with that method by counting each Member's days of congressional service, beginning on his or her first day of service and ending on the last. In carrying out this approach, CRS used a computer application that calculates the days elapsed from one date to another. The application knows the number of days of each month, and it is designed to handle the intercalary day for leap years. However, the number of elapsed days does not include the first day of service, so the number of days served is equal to the number of elapsed days plus 1.

<sup>4</sup> To report congressional service in terms of years and fractions of years, we divide the total days served, which includes intercalary days for leap years, by the average number of days in the Gregorian year (365.2425).

Calculation Method

Calculations of days of service varied according to the pattern of a Member's service. For example —

- Clarence A. Cannon of Missouri served in one continuous period from 3/4/1923 through 5/12/1964. The elapsed time from one date to the other was 15,045, but because Representative Cannon served for each of the elapsed days and on the first day, we add one day to the elapsed time for a total of 15,046 days.
- Justin Morrill served in both the House and the Senate, continuously from 3/4/1855 to 3/3/1867 in the House (4,383 days) and from 3/4/1867 to 12/28/1898 in the Senate (11,623 days). Morrill's total congressional service was the sum of those two periods, 16,006 days.
- Henry Jackson of Washington also served continuously in both the House and the Senate, but because of a statutory change there is an overlap of one day in his official dates of service. Jackson served in the House from 1/3/1941 through 1/3/1953, but his first day in the Senate was also on 1/3/1953. If we simply added his House service (4,384 days) and his Senate service (11,199 days), we would double-count 1/3/1953; so we add the days of service in each chamber (15,583 days) and subtract one day from that sum for Jackson's total days of congressional service (15,582 days). Alternately, we could simply count the days from when his House service started through the date of the day when his Senate service ended.
- Samuel Smith served in the House, then in the Senate, then again in the House, and then once again in the Senate. His first period of service (in the House) did not overlap with the second (in the Senate). There was a break between his first period of Senate service and his second period of House service, but there an overlapping day (12/17/1822) when he moved finally from the House again to the Senate. Accordingly, we add the days of each period of service and subtract one day from the sum for a total of 14,276 days of congressional service.

Sources

Table 1 draws the dates of congressional service from the Biographical Directory of the United States Congress, 1774-Present;<sup>5</sup> the "Table of United States Senators" in U.S. Congress, Senate, Senate Manual, S. Doc. 104-1; and various editions of the Congressional Directory (Washington: GPO). When a date in the Biographical Directory was unclear, CRS consulted other sources for clarification, as shown in notes to Table 1.

Notes: Names of incumbents appear in boldface.

- a. Members with the identical length of service are ranked with the same number. Thus, the three Members ranked 16th follow 15 Members with lengthier service. The next Member in the list is ranked 19th because he follows 18 Members with lengthier service.
- b. Party abbreviations: D-Democratic; DR-Democratic Republican; I-Independent; J-Jacksonian; R-Republican
- c. Length of service in years is presented as the ratio of the number of days of service divided by the average number of days per year on the Gregorian calendar, the current standard calendar in most of the world (365.2425 days per year).
